Jet-It-Together Adds Jennifer Wetstein To Head Sales Industry Executive to Guide Sales Operations

(Essex, CT, November 23, 2009)...Jet-It-Together www.jet-it-together.com, the online community where members share private jet travel by matching their itineraries with other members, announced today that Jennifer Wetstein has joined the company as its Vice President of Sales. In this position Jennifer will play an instrumental role in developing and setting the direction for continued expansion of the company's sales initiatives.

Since its launch in June 2009, the Jet-It-Together community has quickly grown to nearly 2,000 members. Jennifer's position as Vice President of Sales will be an integral part of the company's continued growth. As Vice President of Sales, Jennifer is responsible for actively recruiting and engaging corporate accounts and affiliate partners, growing new business development, and managing the company's sales function.

Jennifer's professional experience spans start up ventures and Fortune 500 companies in both the private jet industry and the technology sector. She has held senior level sales positions at both DayJet and Sentient Jet, Inc, as well as at Motorola and Parametric Technology Corporation where she was responsible for developing and managing major corporate accounts, OEM relationships, and strategic partner relationships. Jennifer holds a B.S. from Bentley College and an MBA in International Business from Bentley College's McCallum Graduate School.

"We are very pleased that Jennifer has joined the Jet-It-Together team. The combination of her knowledge and enthusiasm for the private jet industry plus her experience in building and managing sales organizations is a tremendous asset to the company. She knows the market and understands the changes and choices we are bringing to it," noted John Ackermann, a founder of Jet-It-Together, LLC.
